

COP CHASES YOUTH AFTER BOLD HOLDUP

Sixth Ave. Shopping Throng
Sees Dash for Liberty End in Arrest.

MERCHANT ASSAULTED

Louis Goldstein Gets Rap on Head From Blackjack, but Saves His Cash.

A little young man who came tearing out of a store at Sixth avenue and Twenty-sixth street at 8 o'clock last night and darted into the street thinking he had lost himself created a stir in the crowded thoroughfare.

The crowd at the corner gave way and the youth plunged on in Sixth avenue, not before he was seen by a patrolman who had heard the cries of a man who had been attacked in the store.

The officer gave chase and the youth put on speed, elbowing his way furiously, as if he were trying to burrow a place of concealment in the mass of the Saturday night paraders. A dozen yards behind ran Patrolman Cornelius White, gun drawn, shouting to the youth to halt, when the crowd caught sight of the patrolman they parted, and gradually the youth gained. White feared to shoot at the risk of hitting bystanders.

At Twenty-sixth street and Sixth avenue the young man of 18 years of age, who was seen by the police, he had attempted to rob the dry goods shop of Louis Goldstein, at 411 Sixth avenue, and had knocked Goldstein over the head with a blackjack after asking Goldstein to get him a shirt. De March started for the cash register, it was alleged, but saw two other persons coming from the rear of the store and lost his nerve. The weapon with which Goldstein was hit was not found.

COPELAND RESUMES VACCINATION DRIVE

Finds Obstruction to Preventive
Work in Tenements.

In the most crowded sections of the city, the places where epidemics are constantly being forestalled, the Department of Health has found strong opposition to requests for permission to vaccinate children and adults. According to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Commissioner of Health, the department's physicians and inspectors have found whole blocks where their efforts to vaccinate families are obstructed. All this, in the opinion of the Commissioner, will eventually lead to trouble, particularly if immigrants from some of the European countries where the diseases are now prevalent are admitted to the tenement districts.

Dr. Copeland called attention to the epidemics of smallpox in Russia, Rumania and parts of Italy. In Scotland, also, he declared the disease is being kept under control with some difficulty. He showed that these are the countries from which the United States is now drawing immigrants.

"We believe there is a lack of education regarding the value of vaccination by the present generation," said Dr. Copeland. "We will have to begin all over again."

He explained that with the opening of school in the autumn every child now unvaccinated must receive the treatment.

Our AUGUST SALE OF Furs

—a business policy that ranks this year, as a greater merchandising achievement.

It has always been our custom, during August (a normally dull month in the Fur Department), to maintain a healthy average of sales by offering important price benefits. Since this custom affords first choice of new stocks at lowest prices, it has been awarded the respect and patronage of our customers.

This year, however, our August Sale ranks as a greater merchandising achievement. Three months ago, when we were preparing our Winter stocks the fate of the August Sale of Furs hung on a quick and sound decision. Trade conditions had brought prices to the lowest point of the year, but there were many who predicted a still greater decline. Should we buy or should we wait? We decided—and bought.

The merchants who waited could not buy later at these prices, for on May 27th, the fur workers went on strike and production was suspended. These merchants now face a severe shortage; they are not prepared for an August Sale and for that reason are holding none. When fur production is resumed, they must pay the increased prices due to shortage.

Since ours has proved the far-sighted policy, our August Sale may well be termed a "merchandising achievement."

We can guarantee that these values will not be surpassed this year
